said to me "for God's sake when you see things in such a condition, put them right and don't trouble merely sending me reports which I have little time to read". There was no Govt. Order to that effect but when it became known --- that I had the Collector at my back I had no trouble getting the local authority to turn out his staff and get things straightened there and then. These procedures did not involve any extra outlay; and I am of opinion that when such outlay is involved the District Sanitary Officer should not attempt putting things right himself but should report the matter to the Deputy Commissioner to have the necessary order issued. There should of course be a budget for sanitary purposes, but in modern civil life these funds should not be spent without the consent and knowledge of the contributing parties, through their representatives the District and various other Boards.

It appears to me that if District Sanitary ~~Officers~~ affairs were run on these lines it would be to the public advantage and friction would be avoided.
